ABOUT AUSTIN

For many decades, Austin sat quietly in the nebulous nether regions between the Deep South and the Old West, strumming her own tune. As more and more visitors have discovered the "small town within a big city" feel that is unique to Austin, the population has skyrocketed. Art and music lovers have come from all over the world to this special haven for musicians, who are embraced by a laid-back community. Quality of life in Austin is enriched by abundant natural resources: rolling hills, the Colorado River, Barton Springs Pool to name just a few. Austin is also a vibrant college town with 11 colleges and universities. This means there are plenty of coffee shops, bars, parks and places to hang out. While we eagerly anticipate your visit to our fair city, we hope you do not let the secret out to too many others!

ETCETERA

- Uncertain length of stay. If hostellers don't know how long they'll be staying, they can pay for one night, then return to the office the next day if they need to pay for another night. If hostellers prepay for several days and cancel some of those days, AM CO-OP will keep $5 for every two prepaid days. AM Co-op will also keep $5 for every two prepaid days when hostellers are expelled for uncooperative behavior or hostility.

- Four-week maximum. AM Co-op hostellers can stay for up to four weeks. Hostellers who want to stay longer than that must sign a regular membership contract.

- Changing rooms. Hostellers are assigned specific rooms by AM Co-op staff. If there's a serious problem with an assigned room, a hosteller may ask a house officer to re-assign them, and must notify the AM Co-op office the following morning of the room re-assignment.

- Unwelcome behavior. The house may expel any hosteller for refusing to love the house or for other uncooperative behavior. If a hosteller is expelled, the house must inform the AM CO-OP office 888-848-2595 immediately.
